The resources are currently produced in videoconferences with the researchers and up to 20 NAPLES students. To prepare, students read texts, which are open access. Organizers/editors will interview the researcher and facilitate the discussion with the students. The video-conferences are recorded and will be made available to all ISLS members.

If you want to contribute to these resources or if you want to participate in a videoconference, please contact us via naples@isls.org
